"NCArch" Electronic Discussion Group Created

Tom Beaman

The NCArch electronic discussion group was created to stimulate discussion and to assist in the dissemination of information on archaeology in North Carolina to professional and avocational archaeologists.

Topics of posts can include upcoming meetings or events, recent discoveries, artifact typology, field methodology, laboratory methods, artifact conservation, ethics, archaeological theory, past lifeways, cultural resource management, NAGPRA, other laws related to archaeological findings, job postings, and requests for volunteers to help in the field or lab--literally anything related to prehistoric, historic, or underwater archaeology in North Carolina! As posts to NCArch are not moderated, ethical behavior and professionalism are expected to be upheld by all members of the list, be they professional or avocational archaeologists (e.g., the buying or selling artifacts will not be tolerated and your membership to the group will be revoked).

To subscribe to NCArch, send an email to NCArch-subscribe@egroups.com and you will receive confirmation of your subscription and instructions on how to post to the group. This is a secure electronic list. Your email address will NOT be forwarded to any agency, spam mailing list, or other electronic discussion group.

Kiln Discovered At Old Salem

A kiln of the Shaffner-Krause Pottery, established on Lot 81 in Salem in 1834, was located during the Old Salem/UNC-Greensboro Field School in Historical Archaeology this June and July. Old Salem Archaeologist Michael O. Hartley, director of the field school, reports that the location of the kiln was a main goal of this summer's work. While much research has been directed to Moravian pottery of the eighteenth century, many questions about the pottery of Salem and the Wachovia Tract in the nineteenth century remain to be addressed. The kiln, partially exposed in the excavation, is rectilinear, and approximately twenty feet long by fifteen feet wide. Kiln furniture and pottery were recovered in the excavation and are being analyzed in the Old Salem Archaeology Laboratory. One structure known to be part of the pottery, the 1766 Workmen's House, was the first building erected in Salem. It became the Shaffner potting shop in 1834. With the location of the kiln established, subsequent excavations can move from it to the nearby 1766 building.
